The Speaker stated that the day before, an error had been made in adding up the vote upon the bill to supply deficiencies in the pay and mileage of members, &c., by which the bill appeared to be defeated. The correction passed the bill.

The House then took up and discussed the report of the select committee, appointed to investigate certain alleged improper payments made by Thos. Ewing, late Secretary of the interior. Passed over without any action.

Mr. Boyd stated that the members elect from Calfornia were in attendance, and desired to be sworn in. Mr. Venable opposed their admission, and moved that their credentials be referred to the committee on elections. The question of reference occasioned considerable discussion, which was not concluded when the House adjourned.

On the 11th instant, the Senate took up the bill for abolishing the slave trade in the District. Mr. Seward's amendment abolishing slavery in the District was pending. Mr. Seward offered to withdraw it if it would embarrass the bill, but would offer it at another time. Mr. Downs objected to the withdrawal if it was to be renewed, and it was not withdrawn. Mr. Clay admitted that Congress had full power over the entire subject, but argued that it would be offered the following resolutions, which were adopa violation of good faith, while slavery exists in Maryland and Virginia. Arrival of the Steamer Canada-Seven days Later from Europe.

The British Steamship Canada, arrived at Halifax at half past five o'clock on the morning of the 16th ult., with London dates to the 6th, and Liverpool to the 7th inst. She reports a decline of 4 cent per pound in cotton, since previous advices brought by the Asia. There has also been a decline of 6d. or 12 cents per quarter of 480 lbs. on Indian Corn.

The Austrian Field Marshal HAYNAU, commonly known as the butcher HAYNAU, visited London lately and met with a reception anything but flattering. The following account is given of the affair.

He arrived in London on Monday morning. and to satisfy his curiosity, paid a visit to the extensive brewery of Messrs. Barclay, Perkins & Co. On inspecting the visitors' book, the clerk discovered that one of the visitors was Marshal Haynau, commander of the Austrian forces. This fact became known all over the brewery in a very few moments, and before the General and his companions had crossed the yard, nearly all the laborers and draymen ran out with brooms, dirt and other such like weapons shouting at the top of their voices, "down with the Austrian butcher!" together with other equally unwelcome epithets. Haynau thought prudence the better part of valor & began beating a retreat. Anattack on him was commenced by dropping trusses of straw on his head, after which grain and other articles of allong and painful illness. Mr. S. said that there were most every kind were freely thrown upon him. The few men who had such enviable popularity as that which Dr. Nes possessed among his immediate conface and eyes, and jostled and husseled him very unmen next struck his hat in slouch fashion over his dignifiedly in all directions, and in all manner of Himself and party finally succeeded in reaching the entrance gate, but no sooner had they made their exit than a crowd of coal-heavers seized upon him. He was pelted and struck in every shape with every available missile, and even dragged along on the ground, being pulled, not very comfortably, by his ample mustache, which afforded good facilities as a means of pulling from its excessive length and At this juncture the once stern and proud strength. Marshal of the Austrians was compelled to retreat into a public house hard by, where he concealed himself in a closet. The furious mob rushed in after him, threatening loudly, but fortunately for his highness they did not succeed in discovering his retreat. Here the affair ended. This assault has been the subject of much comment in all the English and Provincial papers. The proceedings in Congress at Washington, attracted much attention in England. The engrossment by the Senate of the Fugitive Slave Bill has been strongly commented upon and censured.

There is no news from France, of especial importance, nor any additional news from the seat of the Danish and Schleswig Holstein war.

The Hamburg papers have advices from Vienna, stating that the Russian Cabinet has resolved to induce the German powers to join the grand diplomatic Congress to be held at Vienna. At this Congress the pending question of the European policy is to be decided, and a new basis for the system of States is to be established.

POPULATION OF WESTERN CITIES .- The census is now nearly completed in Cincinnati, and it is supposed that it will show the population to be near 150,-000. The St. Louis Union learns from those engaged in taking the census of St. Louis, that the population will not be far from 90,000. The census of Milwaukie, Wisconsin shows a population of 20,026. In 1834, only sixteen years ago, Solomon Juneau was the sole white male inhabitant of the town, and even in 1840, Milwaukie could only number seventeen hundred inhabitants.

A NEW CAR.-Mr. W. C. Randolph and George Vogler, of this place, have put up a new kind of Car or Truck, or something of the sort, which has excited considerable interest in our Town, for a few days past. They intend taking out a patent right for it. It is capable of transporting, they think, by the power of one horse, more, than two teams of six horses with the common road wagon. However this may be, it is very evident on looking at the model, which they have made, that a working Car built after the plan, could sustain all the weight that could be placed upon it. There are no axles to break, or wheels to crush; and we doubt not on a very smooth hard road one horse could draw almost a mountain of lead. We are afraid, however, that on common roads it may not be found to answer. But as an offset to our fears we must mention the confidence of success of Messrs, Randolph and Vogler, either of them being far more competent than we to decide the question. We sincerely trust we are mistaken, and shall watch the result of a fair experiment with no little interest. If it should so turn out, why then here is a great thing, which, for many purposes, is CHARLOTTE, N. C., SEPT. 14.

Tremendous Hurricane .- Scarcely has the effects of the storm of Saturday night, 24th ult., been summed up, before it becomes a rather distressing duty to record another. On Thursday night last, after the usual bed time, a terrific tornado passed over the Southern portion of this village, doing immense damage. A house was blown down in the South-eastern part of the town, and extending its ravages to a suburban neighborhood of the town, known as Suspension Mount, the storm there leveled every building to the ground. We have not yet learned how far the tempest raged with such fury, or how wide it was .- Hornet's Nest.

 It is a fact that no State sovereignty has ever resisted the action of a rotten Federal Government, without success. Many instances occur to my mind, of which, the most conspicuous, is the bold course of Gov. Troup, of your State, in the Indian difficulty. Texas is now doing the same thing. If, then, a single State can safely defy, what would be the result if a dozen States, which are thrice as populous as the original thirteen, at the date of the revolution, should declare the independence. There is but one answer. victory ! "To

WORDS BY BAYARD TAYLOR-MUSIC BY JULES BENEDICT. I greet, with a full heart, the Land of the West, Whose Banner of Stars o'ver the world is unrolled; Whose empire o'ershadows Atlantic's wide breast, And opes to the sunset its gateway of gold! The land of the mountain, the land of the lake, And rivers that roll in magnificent tide-Where the souls of the mighty from slumber awake And hallow the soil for whose freedom they died!

Thou Cradle of Empire! though wide be the foam That severs the land of my fathers and thee, I hear, from thy bosom, the welcome of home, For Song has a home in the hearts of the Free And long as thy waters shall gleam in the sun,

And long as thy heroes remember their sears,

Be the hands of thy children united as one, And Peace shed her light on the Banner of Stars! There were three verses, but the first has been al grandiloquent nonsense of Fourth of July Odes. As a whole, the song is flat and commonplace.

A PARADON AND ITS SOLUTION—AN INTERESTING ASTRONOMICAL FACT. -- Two persons were born at the same place, at the same moment of time. After an spot, and at the same instant, yet one had lived one hundred days more than the other. How was this possible ? Not to keep our friends in suspense, the solution turns on a curious, but, with a little reflection, a very obvious point in circumnavigation. A person going round the world towards the west loses be performed in a year: if one performs this constantly towards the west, in fifty years he will be fifty days behind the stationary inhabitants; and if the other sail equally towards the east, he will be fifty days in advance of them. One, therefore, will have seen one hundred days more than the other, though they were born and died in the same place, at the same moment, and even lived continually in the same latitudes, and reckoned by the same calendar.

The Death of Louis Phillippe-Incidents of his Life. The death of Louis Phillippe, Ex-King of France which occurred on the 26th ultimo, in England whither he took refuge on the breaking out of the revolution of 1848, deserves more than a passing notice. The following article from the Philadelphia Bulletin, gives, in a condensed form, many of the prominent incidents in his eventful life: The Ex-King was born at Paris, on the 6th of Oc tober, 1773, and was, therefore, in the 77th year of his age. His father, the fourth Duke of Orleans, was descended from the younger brother of Louis the Fourteenth and became notorious for his dissolute selfish, and reckless life. In the revolution of 1789. he assumed the title of citizen Egalite, and voted to decapitate the King, his cousin. He afterwards perished on the scaffold himself, dying with a stoical sensuality which has made his name infamous for-

His eldest son was educated under the care of Madame Genlis, an accomplished woman, who lived in the family of the Duke secretly as his mistress. She was, however, faithful to her trust as teacher, and Phillippe became Colonel of the 14th regiment of dragoons by inheritance, that post always descend 1790 he joined his regiment. In 1792 he was made year, fought at Valmy. In November, he greatly been his intimate friend, and the execution of his father, soon destroyed the brilliant prospects of the young prince, and he was forced to flee from France finely played, and then followed the most wonderful, the most enchanting performance we have ever listened to—the triof for voice and two flutes, by M'lle Lind, and Messrs. Kyle and Siede, from Meyerbeer's "Camp of Silesia." The story of this piece is briefly the endeavors of a young girl to teach her lover to play a piece which Frederick of Prussia is in the habit of playing, so that she may make use of it in a romantic attempt to save the King's life from plotters, who have conspired against it. There is a sort of contest between flute and voice, the one echoing the other; and although the flutes were most exquisitly played, the voice triumphed. flute and voice, the one echoing the other; and atmough the flutes were most exquisitly played, the voice triumphed.—

The composition is characteristic of Meyerbeer; ingenious and difficult, with the rythm and time hard to trace by an uneducated car. Oft at the hour when evening throws Its gathering shades o'er vale and hill, While half the scene in twilight glows, And half in sunlight glories still; The thought of all that we have been, And hoped and feared on life's long way, Remembrances of joy and pain, Come mingling with the close of day.

The distant scene of youth's bright dream, The smiling green, the lustering tree; The murmur of the grass fringed stream, The bounding of the torrent free; The friend, whose tender voice no more Shall sweetly thrill the listening ear; The glow that love's first vision wore, And disappointment's pangs are here.

But soft o'er each reviving scene The chastening hues of memory spread; And smiling each dark thought between, Hope softens every tear we shed. O, thus, when death's long night comes on And its dark shades around me lie, May parting beams from memory's sun Blend softly in my evening sky.

> There is a voice within me, And 'tis so sweet a voice, That its soft lispings win me, Till tears start in my eyes; Deep from my soul it springeth, Like hidden melody; And evermore it singeth

This song of songs to me "This world is full of beauty, As other worlds above; And if we did our duty, It might be full of love !"

Every Man a Farmer.

The cultivation of the earth is congenial to the nature of mankind; and a very large proportion of men, during some share of their lives, either do, or lave a desire to become farmers. Besides those who in ci vilized countries, are bred to the culture of the soil, and make it their sole pursuit through life, there are thousands of others who retire from the bustle and anxieties of trade, the vexations of a professional, or the turmoils of a public life, to rural quiet and the undisturbed cultivation of an acre of land. After a long and weary ride of many days, passing many settlements and cabins, the sedate old gentleman reached the very outskirts of civilization, and halted his horse before a rude cabin, in the door of which sat an elderly man, clad in deer-

CURRANT BUSHES .- Having noticed that curant bushes may as well be made trees as shrubs, will proceed to tell you how I have seen it done. In the spring of 1831, my father commenced a garde, and among other things set cuttings for currant hishes. I determined to make an experiment on one othese cuttings, and as soon as it commenced groung I pinched off all the leaves except the top tuft, hich allowed to grow. The cutting was about for teen nches high, and during the summer the sproufrom The fair bereaved one clutched my hand convulsively; I had touched the right cord—nature burst forth—a very torrent of tears gushed from her eyes —-like unto an earth-order. bout two feet from the ground. It branches well and became a nice little dwarf tree. When it ame that you know? could not pick off the fruit, and grass wee more easily kept from about the roots, and it as an ornament instead of a blemish. Now I wou propose that currant cuttings be set in rows about five feet apart each way, let them be long and spight, and trained into trees .- Michigan Farmer.

often do we hear the question asked is she a lady? I would ask in return, what are the requisites of a lady? Is she a lady. who dresses fashionably and gaudily?—Who spends her time in idleness, or worse than idleness, because she is too proud to Black worse than idleness, because she is too proud to Black do. Old Hyson do. work, while, perhaps, her father, husband, or broth-old Hyson do. North Carolina Lard; ers, toil from morn till night for her support? Is it she, who leaves her sick friend, -mother, perhaps, -in the care of a hired nurse, to attend a party of pleasure or a ball !-Or children in care of a mere child? Too often, alas! are these things done by those who claim the title of lady.

I was once asked, in regard to a friend of whom I was speaking. Is she much of a lady? I answered, yes, in every sense of the word. I then asked the person what she meant by the term Lady. She answered by asking, if she did her own work? Yes; she sews, knits, and sometimes spins; she goes with her husband (who is a minister) to visit the poor and sick; she makes her husband's clothes (except coats) entirely; she can make nice, good bread, can cook meat and vegetables to perfection, and make puddings, pies and cake; she can also converse with you upon history. natural philosophy, astronomy, botany, &c., or the common events of the day; and all in a very intelligent and lady-like manner.

A true lady will not think it beneath her to do anything that duty or circumstances may require .--How often do you hear it asked, is such, or such ar one a lady? and the reply is, oh, no! she's but a farmer's daughter, or wife, as the case may be. I have known of farmer's daughters, on being sent to a boarding school, a few miles from home, becoming ashamed to say their parents were farmers; ashamed to own that they ever milked a cow, washed the dishes, or baked bread. I once heard a mother say (a farmer's wife, too,) of her daughters, "I intend to raise my daughters ladies; they shall not work and drudge about the kitchen, as I have done, making their hands as hard and rough as a wash-woman's. They would not look well at a fashionable party or ball-room, after cooking over the stove till their faces are as red as a man's who works in the sun all day."

Alas, vain, shallow-minded woman! is that the chief end for which you are raising your daughters, to grace a ball-room and to despise their parents? for if they despise labor, they will despise those who perform it. It would be far better to raise them to be useful-to keep their own houses, or assist their parents, and to think themselves dignified by performing useful labor.

The notion of its being degrading (entertained by certain class) for a lady to do the work of her own household, is fast passing away, and it is to be hoped never to be revived. What a noble example of the rue lady, in both theory and practice, had we in the much lamented editress of our department of the Cultivator. Long will she be remembered by many of us, into whose hearts she had penned her way.-She was not ashamed to tell us, she did her own work. And where is her superior in refinement and attainments? Let us all strive, like her, to be true ladies As a lady once said, in writing to her young sister. strive to be a lady in all you do, in all you say; in all your actions, be a lady;" whether it be in the kitchen or parlor, be a lady.

Fairfield Co., O., July, 1850. "This is my funeral, if you please, sir," was the exclamation, not of one who, like Timothy Dexter, was buried in his life-time, in order to see how a funeral procession would look, but of an odd specimen of humanity, a fisherman down in Maine, who had lost his better-half. The relatives and friends were gathered at the house, the prayer was said, and the lergyman began his exhortation to those assembled. In the course of it, as he was quoting frequent passages of Scripture, one of the deacons of his church rose and remarked, in a very solemn and elongated mourner jumped from his seat. and patting the deacon on his shoulder, exclaimed-"Pray. my friend. you just sit down-sit right down-and don't bother Nor is this prevailing love of agriculture, which the parson. Ulcer Cured of Seven Years Standing.
This cure was effected in July, 1844; there have been no symptoms of a return, and her health still continues good, July, 1848:

New York, July 25, 1844.

Messrs. Sands—Gentlemen: I consider it but an act of justice to you to state the following facts in reference to the great benefit I have received in the cure of an obstinate Cancerous Ulcer on my breast.

I was attended eighteen months by a regular and skillful physician, assisted by the advice and counsel of one of our most able and experienced surgeons, without the least benefit whatever. All the various methods of treating cancers were resorted to; for five weeks in succession, my breast was burned with caustic, three times a day, and for six it was daily syringed with a weak solution of nitrie acid, and the cavity or internal ulcer was so large that it held over an ounce of the solution. The doctor probed the ulcer and examined the bone, and said the disease was advancing rapidly to the lungs, and if I did not get speedy relief by medicine or by an operation, the result would be fatal. I was advised to have the broast laid open and the bones examined; but finding no relief from what had been done, and feeling I was rapidly getting worse, I almost despaired of recovery, and considered my case nearly hopeless.

Seeing various testimonials and certificates of cure by the Seeing various testimonials and certificates of cure by the use of Sands' Sarsaparilla, in cases similar to my own, I concluded to try a few bottles, several of which were used, but, from the long deep-seated character of my disease, produced no very decided change. Considering this as the only probable cure for my case, I persevered until the disease was entirely cured. It is now over eleven months since the cure was completed; there is not the slightest appearance of a return. I therefore promounce myself well, and the cure entirely effected by Sands' Sarsaparilla, as I took no other medicine of any kind dwring the time I was using it, nor hare I taken any kind during the time I was using it, nor have I taken

We have read again and again of the efficacy of this invalua-We have read again and again of the efficacy of this invaluable medicine—if we can call a very pleasant beverage medicine—but not until recently have we had any positive proof which could induce us to speak fairly of it. But, from facts in our possession, we are now well convinced that, without any exception, it is the SAFEST, PLEASANTEST, and BEST compound ever offered to the public, for the cure of all chronic diseases, rheumatism and scrofula, and all impurities of the blood, to gether with many other complaints.—Hurtford Review.

The following is an extract from a letter received from Mrs. Bevan, who had been afflicted several years with Scrofulous Ulcers, Dyspepsia, &c., and recently an affection of the throat

BAILEVSBURG, Va., Dee'r 13, 1845.
Messrs, A. B. & D. Sands-Before I commenced using your Sarsaparilla, my sufferings were almost past expression; my throat was completely ulcerated, I had a dreadful cough, and there were frequently weeks together that I could not speak above a whisper; and besides, the inflammation from my throat extended to my head, so that my hearing was very much impoired. After taking the Sarsaparilla a short time, my health improved, and my throat is now well; I am as free from cough and tightness of the chest as ever I was, and can hear quite distinctly. My throat has been well about three months, the cure of which has been effected entirely by the use of your Sarsaparilla. Your friend, LOUISA R. BEVAN.
